SPINOZA CAPITAL

Investment strategy

The Fund pursues capital appreciation and achieving attractive risk-adjusted returns (returns measured relative to the level of risk taken) through a quantitative and qualitative investment selection process based on the principles of value investing. The Fund has a special focus on companies with an entrepreneurial backing or with a strong alignment of incentives between public shareholders and insiders like (i) a long-term oriented anchor shareholder like a founder or an entrepreneurial family, (ii) a significant shareholding by the management team and/or sizeable share purchases by the management, and/or (iii) significant share buybacks.

The Fund is actively managed and is not managed in reference to any benchmark index; any indices mentioned in this document are provided solely for performance comparison and market context. Investments are selected based on the principles of value investing employing the Investment Manager's proprietary, rules based quantitative and qualitative investment selection process, incorporating combinations of different value, management quality and/or ownership structure parameters or criteria, that seek to take advantage of discrepancies between the estimated fundamental value of a security and its market price.

Fund manager's comment: June 2026

June 2026 was an interesting month for equity markets. After an extremely strong May 2026, Nasdaq took a breather in June 2026 and declined by -2.8%, while the S&P 500 declined -1.1%. In Europe, the DJ Stoxx 600 advanced by +2.5% primarily driven by technology stocks as well as financials, while mid-cap indices struggled with the Stoxx Europe small-cap index declining -2.6% and the MDAX declining -4.6%.

Generally, it seems that the market has moved on from the massive semiconductor trade in 2026 which have propelled semiconductor stocks from a weighting in the S&P 500 from c. 10% at the beginning of 2026 to c. 20% currently. Although this increase has taken place on the back of massive earnings upgrades in the semiconductor sector, it remains to be seen how long the demand overhang will last. Current share prices of semiconductor stocks imply the demand overhang will persist for another 5 – 8 years, while if history is any guide competitive forces, inhouse-developed chips of hyperscalers as well as a potential reduction of AI infrastructure capex may affect the pricing of semiconductor stocks earlier, particularly in the memory space.

The Entrepreneur Fund declined -0.9% in June 2026. Performance of individual stocks differed significantly without fundamental newsflow justifying the wide dispersion of returns. Notable strong performers in June 2026 were financials (e.g. Bawag +14%, TP ICAP +11%, BNP +10%) and selected mid-cap stocks (e.g. Tonies +17%, Alaska Air +13%, Howard Hughes Holdings +13%). Weak performers were primarily European mid-caps like KION (-12%), Jost (-12%), Duerr (-15%), and CTS Eventim (-18%). The largest underperforming large-cap stock was Deutsche Telekom, which declined -17% on the back of concerns of increasing competitive threats. As the weak performance of individual stocks in June 2026 was not driven by fundamental factors, there is an attractive catch-up opportunity for several stocks currently held by the Fund.

The Fund slightly increased its equity exposure to c. 92% of net asset value (NAV). At the end of June 2026, c. 7% of NAV was allocated to cash and c. 1% to bonds. The Fund's assets were distributed as follows: approximately 62% in EUR-denominated instruments, 18% in USD, 17% in GBP, and 3% in a mix of CHF, NOK, AUD, and PLN.

Investor Profile

The Fund is suitable for investors seeking long-term capital growth and may not be appropriate for investors who plan to withdraw their money within 5 years.

Market risk: Market fluctuations and general market or systematic risk is inherent to an entire investment market and as such, to a varying degree, in all of the Fund's investments. Price movements in an investment market can be volatile and are influenced, among other things, by changing market supply and demand, national and international political and economic events.

Concentration risk: To the extent that the Fund's investments are concentrated in a particular country, market, industry or asset class, the Fund may be susceptible to loss due to adverse occurrences affecting that country, market, industry or asset class.

Counterparty risk: There is a risk that a counterparty will not fulfil its payment obligation for a trade, contract or other transaction, on the due date. This may result in losses.

Liquidity risk: The Fund may be exposed to liquidity risk where, due to a lack of marketability, the Fund's investments cannot be bought or sold quickly enough to prevent or minimize a loss.

Derivatives risk: The Fund may use derivatives in an attempt to reduce risk (hedging) or for investment and portfolio management purposes. The use of derivatives can create leverage, which may magnify both potential gains and losses. It may be that the use of derivatives may not always be successful and cause unit prices to fluctuate which may in turn result in loss to the Fund.

Credit risk: The risk of default that may arise if an issuer fails to make payments when due.

Operational risk: The risk of losses caused by employees, delegates, service providers and other third parties through insolvency, errors, fraud or criminal actions.

Currency risk: The Fund's reference currency is EUR, whereas the underlying investments of the Fund are denominated in a variety of currencies. Consequently, the performance of the Fund may be influenced by movements in foreign exchange rates between EUR and the currencies in which the underlying investments are denominated.
